The Rest of the Story

BELOW we copy an editorial paragraph from the Las Vegas Optic of last Tuesday. In the sense in which the Optic meant it, the statement is correct and tells the plain truth, but there is a good deal more of the story, and the "truth of history" demands that it be told. Here is the Optic's paragraph:

"The New Mexican is wrong in the assertion that the change in conditions in Albuquerque with regard to the enforcement of the Sunday laws was caused by 'six months of newspaper agitation.' The Albuquerque papers didn't agitate the question and we don't believe that the agitation of other papers, including the Optic, had a thing in the world to do with the matter. Judge Abbott and the district attorney knew the law was being violated and they made up their minds that the law must be enforced much longer than six months ago and worked to that end accordingly."

The "newspaper agitation" referred to by the New Mexican was the agitation which that paper itself kept up, and which had just as much effect upon the result as its agitation in favor of the sun "crossing the line" next March would have upon the solar system.

It is true, as the Optic says, that "the Albuquerque papers didn't agitate the question," because they knew as all the people of Albuquerque knew that to agitate against the violation of the Sunday law so long as the causes which upheld and protected the violators in their course remained undisturbed, would not only be useless but ridiculous.

They knew that before the Sunday law could be enforced the corrupt political gang which controlled the affairs of the county and stood for the violation of that and many other laws, must be shorn of its power. And they knew that before this could be done the district judges who upheld the gang and did its bidding must be removed from office. The judgeship was the keystone of the arch, and when the keystone was removed the whole structure fell. But this important work, upon which all else depended, was done solely by the patient and persistent efforts of the Good Government League, an organization composed of law-respecting citizens of Albuquerque. And while this good work was being done the Great American Agitator at Santa Fe totally failed to agitate, but gave aid and comfort to the enemies of good government in this county by trying to belittle the work and character of the League just as it now misrepresents and discredits the efforts of the Joint Statehood League.

When we got a judge who respected the law, and a sheriff who was willing to enforce the law, the work of Sunday closing was practically done, and, as the Optic says, the noise made by agitators had nothing in the world to do with the matter. The saloon men offered no opposition to the enforcement of the law. In fact, a large majority of them were in favor of it, but it had to be general. The proprietors of respectable houses nearly all wanted to close their places of business on Sunday, but they could not afford to do so as long as the dives were permitted to run. The dive keepers knew that when Sheriff Armijo said close he meant CLOSE, and that it would not be profitable or comfortable for them to try to disobey the order.

Judge Abbott and District Attorney Clancy, as is well known, hold firmly to the proposition that the laws must be obeyed, and as soon as we got a sheriff who stood with them the work of closing the saloons on Sunday became a very simple matter, and one that required no agitation.

Fighting for the People

THE manager of the Morning Journal yesterday received applications from two distinguished citizens of the United States for authority to vote as his proxy as a policy holder in one of the life insurance companies now in trouble. One of these applications comes from Grover Cleveland, who is chairman of the "voting trustees" of the Equitable, and the other is from Thomas W. Lawson, who is making things uncomfortable for Mr. Cleveland's company and several others.

Mr. Lawson is doing a marvelous work in the way of showing up the crookedness of many of the big life companies, and since he is working in the interest of every person who carries a life insurance policy, his efforts should be seconded by the whole American people. To give an idea of the magnitude of the work which Mr. Lawson has undertaken we copy from his circular the following item showing what it costs the grafters:

"To print 3,500,000 of this and other circulars twelve presses have been running day and night for weeks.

"To fold, envelop and address these documents has required the services of fifty-three persons.

"To open the incoming letters containing proxies, and to tabulate the results keeps twenty-six clerks and stenographers busy twelve hours a day.

"To pay for the paper and the printing, the envelopes and the postage, the folding and the addressing of circulars, the inspecting and tabulating of proxies, the salaries of the clerical force of seventy-nine, with telegraph, express, and innumerable and heavy incidental charges, has necessitated, so far, the expenditure of nearly $100,000."

HERE is a notice of an entertainment at one of the Los Angeles theaters, which we find in the Times: "As usual there was a full house at 10, 20 and 30 cents. Most of the audience consisted of youths from 15 to 20 years of age, to whom the legs in the gaudiest of tights, sans trimmings worth mentioning, are an edifying sight. There was present, also, a goodly number of old sports, who ogled the job lot of scantily clad females that disported their anatomy in various poses and contortions. The women in the audience, of whom there was quite a sprinkling, were mostly of the bleached-blond variety with painted eyebrows."

THE result of the election in San Francisco will serve to convince both the great political parties that union labor is a power in this country that has to be reckoned with.

RUSSIA is not ready for republican institutions as we have them here. Education and enlightenment, the spirit of self-control and peace and order must precede complete self-government.

THE Albuquerque Journal is a republican paper, but it stands for clean politics, and demands the resignation of Delegate Andrews.—Roswell Record.

SPEAKING about the sex of angels, a chorus of men of the Taft girls and with wings outstretched would add to the substantiality of paradise.—Baltimore Sun.

HALL CAINE says he would rather be an author than be president. Mr. Roosevelt might reply that he prefers to be both.—Washington Post.

A SOFT answer may turn away wrath, but it only encourages the tramp.—Burlington (Va.) Leader.

FAMILY LIFE IN VENICE.

M. H. Vorse.

(The Pilgrim for November.)

All Venetian families live from hand to mouth, indeed, so do all families throughout Italy. The day's marketing suffices for that day. If for your cooking you need tomatoes, you buy two, and not a whole kilo, for all fruit and vegetables are sold here by weight and not by measure. Even the ever necessary rice and pasta are bought "fresh and fresh" in the exact quantity that experience has shown the family uses. So the groceries and the markets act as a huge storehouse, and dole out each household's supply every morning so that no waste is possible. You never buy a whole pound of butter or a dozen of eggs at a time. With the morning's milk comes exactly enough butter for the uses of the day. If Maria needs more butter she makes a dash for the nearest store and returns with three cents' worth. If an extra egg is required in cooking, that, one egg is bought instead of half a dozen. And you can buy two-fifths of a cent's worth of anything at exactly the same rate you would buy a dollar's worth—in fact for less if you are a foreigner. Under four eyes and hands you would be apt to get a trifle less than good measure.

So my household budget for the day stands:

One lb. turkey 20 cents; 1 lb. goose, 16 cents; fish, 35 cents; 1-2 lb. mushrooms, 6 cents; 1 lb. tomatoes 3-5 cents; salt pork for soup, 7 cents; carrots, 1 cent; parsley 2-5 cents; soup meat, 1-2 lb. 8 cents; rice, 2-5 cents; zucchini, 1 cent; salad, 3 cents; 1-4 of a cabbage, 1-2-5 cents; verdura (soup greens), 1 cent; cheese (parmesan for risotto), 2 cents; 1 lb. grapes, 4 cents; other fruit, 3 cents; total, $1.075.

You see you can buy not only the fraction of a pound of anything, but you may also buy a portion of a turkey; you can buy a leg or a wing of a turkey, or a shoulder of lamb. In this case I have a leg of turkey with its large yellow claw attached, and some white meat, and a good piece of breast of goose. I am allowed to eat a small portion of the turkey, and a small portion of the fish. I have four small soles, a number of trigla, which look like goldfish, some silvery sardines, and a quantity of shrimps which are better fried than in any other way. The fish man has thrown in three or four small, which the Venetians love, and of which they make ink stews. Well cleaned and fried, they taste not unlike scallops. The zucchini are tiny baby squashes and earlier in the season the fritto mistos are garnished with zucchini flowers fried. Maria will first fry zucchini in olive oil, and then the fish.

THE REAL GUATEMALA.

Nevin O. Winter.

Guatemala is a country of great undeveloped possibilities. Twenty years ago the first railroad was opened connecting the capital with the Pacific port of San Jose. A distance of seventy miles. From Escuintla, a favorite watering place, a branch extends to Mazatenango, and there connects with another line to the port of Champerico. On the Gulf side, a road, the Guatemala Northern, is built from Puerto Barrios to Rancho San Augustin, a distance of one hundred and twenty-nine miles. With the completion of the seventy-five miles intervening between this point and Guatemala City, there will be a continuous line between the Gulf and the Pacific.

The latter road was well constructed and opened to traffic ten years ago. However, it is a difficult matter to keep a road in repair in these tropical countries because of excessive rain the action of the elements and insects upon the ties. In the one hundred and twenty-nine miles of track there are two hundred and thirty bridges, and many of these are over streams which, in the rainy season, are raging torrents. In that season, many of the streams change their course or widen their beds and wash out the track. One who has never visited tropical countries cannot appreciate the difficulties of railroad construction there. For the past few years the road has been practically abandoned for freight purposes because of washouts and the destruction of a bridge across the Montague river. Now it has been financed again and construction crews are at work all along the line, a new bridge is being built and creosoted ties laid down. At the present time only one train a week is being run to carry the mail and passengers who may want to go. This train requires two days to run the one hundred and twenty-nine miles. The passengers do not urge greater speed, for many of them are weary of the road. There are scarcely two ties in each rail that will hold a spike. This road and all the others are narrow gauge. Considerable work has been and is being done on the extension to the capital, and it is hoped to have it all completed within two years.

The greatest problem with the railroad, as well as with other enterprises, is labor. The Indians will only work spasmodically. Sometimes the political governors will compel them to work, but this cannot exceed fourteen days. Then they draw their pay and leave. The plantation owners over come this by advancing the Indians a certain amount of money; and then the law compels them to work until the debt is paid. Each plantation has an alcalde, or mayor, who has the power to enforce the laws, and he can put the recreant laborer in the stocks or in jail if he refuses to work, or can summon the soldiers to hunt up and bring him back if he attempts to escape. Another mozo is often taken as security for the one employed.

Read what an Albuquerque citizen says:

Mrs. J. H. Smith, of 115 Huning Ave., wife of J. H. Smith, deputy sheriff, says: "I have had backache for a month so severe that every movement I made hurt and I never knew the moment but the slightest strain on the muscles of the back brought a twinge which could only be described as excruciating. I went to the Alvarado Pharmacy for Doan's Kidney Pills and took them. The remedy stopped the annoyance. Since then I have had no necessity to use Doan's Kidney Pills for any other medicine for aching across the small of the back."
